INTRODUCTION

Thank you,

For purchasing this Family Heritage Book. I sincerely appreciate your interest in tracing family heritage. There are other persons with your family name who are also searching their family background and our response has been overwhelming. We have had wonderful letters from all types of people, some just say thanks, some are just getting started, some have found lost children and cousins, others have promptly added additional names to the directory, wives have started the heritage work for their husbands, there are those scheduling family reunions, and others sending and receiving birthday cards and correspondence. For example, Mrs. Villines of California writes, "Last month we received our copy of the Villines Heritage Book and have used the Villines Family Directory to contact a number of other Villines Families in our 'hunger' for further information on the family tree. The efforts are bearing fruit and just wanted you to know that your book has been useful to us."

Mrs. Bushnell of Idaho writes: "This brief letter of thanks to you for a good work very well done. Allow me to state you certainly had a very beautiful mother. The enclosed picture of you with her in 1912 is a rarity depicting how our women dressed in the old days. I appreciate your labor of love in behalf of many Bushnell Families."

Mr. Russell C. Coley of North Carolina states: "Just wanted you to know how pleased and how impressed I am with what you have put together. I'm sure that I will spend many hours pleasantly in search of those who are with me now and those who were before me. Thank you much."

I would like to say that I feel good when I hear people have used the book to expand their knowledge. Some letters are touching and heart moving, a friend in Bakersfield, California was reunited with his natural father because of the heritage book. These things are part of making life worth while.

The following is a general explanation of my information development methods. The individual Family Heritage Books are designed to act as a guide to the discovery and documentation of your personal heritage. The book is a general book on genealogy but with specific sections containing a national directory of a particular family, the means and forms for using this directory, plus an explanation of how to search for your ancestors.

I and my staff first analyzed the rarity of various family surnames using a laborious manual search of public telephone directories of major cities plus a report by H.E.W. called "Report of Distribution of Surnames in the Social Security Number File" BDP Pub. #034–75. After three months of manual work, we developed a computerized approach to searching national data banks of family surnames.

At a cost of over $10,000.00, a private report and procedure was developed producing a report of over 7,000 computer written pages. From these months of work we were in a position to scan the national data banks for the names and addresses of families of rare and distinct surnames. The data banks are composed of names and addresses from automotive registrations, telephone listings, and house to house canvassing for cross street directories.

Each time that we research the 70 million national data bank names on file, we spend over $11,000.00 for the file analysis plus a per item charge for the full names and addresses that we select. If a single family surname were selected it would cost that family $11,000.00. Since we invest in many family surnames at a time, we are able to get the cost down to a reasonable figure.

Once we have the research directories boiled down to individual surname directories, we then combine this information with the general chapters on historical background and the explanation sheets. This collection of historical and current information gives you the ability to continue the discovery and documentation of your own personal and family heritage.

It is my opinion that the information we have compiled, as well as the personal data which the recipient records, will make them exceptionally valuable to each and every family.

The need for a directory and book of this type became apparent to me in my own search for family ancestors, and caused the development of the Bayley System. The Bayley System of Genealogical Research is one of many ways to trace and record your current family members and your common family ancestors.

I and others have used this approach to trace current and past family members for a long time but only now, as the formal Bayley System, has it been organized into an economic and effective approach. The System has computerized the genealogical attack and placed at people's finger tips the guides and means to discover and document their personal history.

In the past, persons with relatively distinctive, unusual or rare surnames would check telephone directories in every city that they passed through and comments usually ran, "Oh, I see that there is a Bayley in that directory. I wonder if they are a relative?" Considering that there are thousands of telephone directories for both large and small communities, and many with unlisted numbers, the old approach is of only small value.

Our families own personal use of the Bayley System has traced the Bayley families origin back to John Bayley, Sr. who came over to the New World on the ship, "Angel Gabriel." John Bayley, Sr. was shipwrecked in 1635 off the coast of Maine and settled in New England. The Riker family line was traced back to Abraham Van Rychen who came to New Amsterdam in the early 17th century. The Morse family was traced back to the 1490's. All of the information that was collected was known by some one prior to our search. However, our approach enabled us to bring it together at our house for our knowledge and enjoyment.

It is a pleasure to know that so many people have received this much enjoyment from our book.

Through the use of my System, you will expand your knowledge of the origin and meaning of your name and roots of one side of your family. This system will not replace the hard work that must be done by professionals at the Library of Congress, The Latter-Day Saints Library at Salt Lake City, or the painstaking research of original source. The system does provide a low cost format for launching your search.

May I suggest that you start your personal search by turning to the section explaining, "How to Use the Reference Directories". As you can see, this is the heart of the book and information about your family should be recorded as soon as possible on the charts provided. If you proceed in a diligent manner, you will accumulate a great deal of valuable knowledge about your family before it becomes lost forever.

ABOUT THE COVER

In doing research for this publication, I had an opportunity to visit Colonial Williamsburg in Virginia where the art of bookbinding is still being performed as it was in the early days of our nation. A bookbinder of the period not only printed and sewed all the pages together by hand but actually made and designed the cover as well. As a craftsman who was competing with others engaged in the same trade, the artistry and professionalism displayed in the cover design often became a testimonial to his craftsmanship. Accordingly, many of these early tradesman deleted the title of the book from the cover so as not to interfere with his original art work. The gold stamping which appears on the cover of this work is an original design based on art work discovered during our research. I would like to thank Kelly Ann Glinsky, the artist on our staff, as well as the Colonial Williamsburg Library for their efforts in creating this interesting cover.

Good Luck and God Bless.

Sincerely,

Beatrice Bayley

How To Search For Family Ancestors

This chapter is a basic introduction on how to start and how to organize your attack on collecting and recording family history. It tells you how to tie in your local family knowledge and expand to a national search.

History of Ethnic Origins and Activities

The motivating forces behind the movements of races, tribes, families, and nationalities of people is one of the keys to tracing the heritage of our forebearers. What our ancestors worked at, their religious beliefs, their means of transportation, and their habits and customs will tell us what sources of information to check and where to check them.

The Meaning and Origin of Heraldry

The more noble, though sometimes villainous, ancestors have carried family crests and coats of arms through generations. Your direct lineage may carry Nobel Rights.

The Origin of Names and Their Meaning

Be your name Royal or Common, Rich or Poor, IT HAS MEANING. Searching for the meaning of your name and your ancestors' surnames gives you significant clues to national origin and family activities.

The Reference Books

All people—all migrations—all nationalities—all religious activities, etc. cannot be represented in this book. This chapter is designed to give you the major sources of reference for various states, nationalities, government records, religious documents, military reports, and family histories.

The Directories and Family Charts

This is your activity area for the search, organization, and recording of results. This will give you the ability to structure the questions that you ask and then analyze your results. It will record forever the facts that you have collected and will make them available to your descendents and relatives for generations to come.

How to Search for Family Ancestors

The interest in tracing family histories has long been a popular pastime. Anyone who has listened to parents or their grandparents reminisce about their great-grandparents arrival from Ireland or their great-grandfather's life in a lumber camp, knows the feeling of interest aroused by such stories. What were these people like, what kind of a life did these people lead, what were the times like? From there it is an easy step to relatives further back-where did they come from and why? One question leads to another until you find yourself hot on the trail of all your ancestors and the times they lived through.

When you begin your search for your family the most important thing to remember is BE SKEPTICAL! Don't believe everything you are told or every fact you find. Always try to have several sources for every fact. If these sources do not agree, make sure you note the source and the fact and hope that a third fact can be found at a later date to confirm one of them. You must keep detailed records of everything you find—and don't find. Sometimes what you don't find can be just as important in your search.

Irish emigrants are leaving home but have the priest's blessing to speed their journey, ca. 1851.

The tools you'll need are not expensive—a standard loose-leaf notebook and lots of paper. Write down everything. Also, from our charts in the back of this book, start filling in your family "tree" as you now know it. Include these in your notebook. When you go out tracking down members, take all of this information with you, for you never know when you'll come across a member you weren't after and need your lists.

Immigrant party of Swedes, ca. 1860.

Start with yourself on the family chart, then your parents, and then grandparents. Also, don't forget brothers, sisters, aunts, uncles, cousins, and in-laws. When you have gone as far as possible on your own, call one of your relatives and explain what you are doing and ask for their help. Your grandmother may thoroughly enjoy telling you about her grandfather from Ireland who lived with her for a few years. Or about the time your mother wore green on Saint Patrick's Day to her grandmothers and was very emphatically told that her grandfather had been an Orangeman. From this story you have learned a very important fact about your mother's family—that they were Protestant Irish.

Leaving their Scottish homeland for America.

Ask your relatives for the addresses of other members of the family who might help you out in your search. Take the time to compose a friendly letter to them asking for their memories about their grandparents and details on themselves and their immediate families. Be sure to enclose blank family charts for them to complete. And always enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for their use. This is a courtesy that should never be ignored. Remember, you are asking for their help and should show appreciation.

Another source of information is the family photo album. Ask someone to sit down with you and go through it, telling you about each person in the pictures and writing names and dates for each photograph. You can ask for these pictures, but remember their value to your relative and consider having copies made by a reputable photographer. But watch your costs and have that clearly determined ahead of time.

German immigrants headed for Salt Lake City, 1880. Meeting at Castle Garden, N.Y. before departure.

You can also ask for old family documents, such as birth certificates, letters, diaries, family Bibles, death certificates, baptismal papers, marrage licenses, and citizenship papers. Other sources of information are school yearbooks, report cards, baby books, funeral memorial cards, health and hospital cards, wills, deeds, newspaper clippings, and military records or medals. There is no end of information you can gather from your relatives in the family momentos they have kept through the years. And ask about silver and china passed down through the family or jewelry—our family has the engagement bracelet given to my great-grandmother in the original box, and labeled with the store in Belfast where it was purchased. I doubt if the store has any record of the sale, but it provides valuable proof of that portion of the family's origin. Don't overlook any such heirlooms from samplers to silver.

When you get all the information available from your relatives, then you have to start the hard part of digging into official records. Do you know when your great-grandparents came to this country? Can you check the boats that arrived around that time—are the passenger lists available? Did they come through Ellis Island? Did they become naturalized citizens? Can you get copies of their papers? All of these records are available at local, state, or federal government record offices. For naturalization records and passenger lists, start with the National Archives in Washington, D.C. and the Immigration very little information, you can start with your parents' marriage certificate which will provide you with their birth dates and place of residence at the time they were married. From there you can check into census information for that state and country. The census is taken every ten years.

If you do not have the advantage of knowing as much about your family, you can start with census records. These are available in a variety of forms and places depending on when they were taken. From about 1600 through 1789, the colonial governors supervised censuses and they are not regular in time or information collected. In 1790 the first Federal census was begun. It was what one would expect from a first census—the information is not always complete, accurate, or available. There were no standard forms used and the census takers were not well paid, so use the information with great care. Also, watch the spelling. These people were not careful to get the correct spelling and often spelled phonetically. (Have you ever read any of George Washington's letters? He would surely have flunked spelling today!)

However, the censuses from 1850 onward were more organized in the information required: names, dates, ages, and relationships of all the people at the same address. Use the census information with care and use several censuses. Since they are taken every ten

Situated on the Mississippi River, 35 miles below St. Paul, is now a prominent point for a large Commercial Town, being backed by an extensive Agricultural, Grazing and Farming Country; has fine streams in the interior well adapted for Milling in all its branches; and Manufacturing WATER POWER to any extent.

He laid it out on such principles as to encourage all MECHANICS, Merchants, or Professions of all kinds on the same equality, and feeling the consequence of the place has gone ahead with such rapidity that it is now an established City, and will annually double in population for years to come.

Persons arriving by Steamboat or otherwise, can be transferred without expense to Steamers going to Saint Louis, or stop at Cairo, and take Railroad to Dunleith on the Mississippi. Steamboats leave Saint Louis and Dunleith daily for NININGER, and make the trip from Dunleith in 36 to 40 hours.

years, there is a possibility that you can verify or correct information from one to the other. And from this information you can start tracking down birth records and death certificates in the locale given on the census record.

A note of warning here. Often the boundaries have changed since the census was taken, especially from the early ones. This is where the local historical societies can be of assistance to you. Every town has one these days and if approached in a polite manner, they will probably be delighted to help you out. You can also check with the local government offices for assistance in the boundaries at specific time. But it is best to call ahead to verify the person you should see and try to determine a convenient time for that person. These county clerks are busy with current work and may not appreciate your turning up out of the blue demanding information.

The county courthouse is a good place to start for deeds if you know or suspect that your relatives owned land in the county, or were married there or had children there. You can check the local churches for baptismal certificates and marriages if their records are available. If a family Bible is available it should give you a clue as to the religion of the family. Keep in mind that in the early years many towns had only one church and when people moved, they joined the church available to them and so may have changed their religion every time they moved. You might also want to look over the cemeteries where your relatives were buried. You probably have heard of the fascinating epitaphs on the old gravestones which can be amusing as well as informative.

While you are poking through the local courthouse, don't neglect the civil and criminal records. Your great-great-grandfather might have been a smuggler and have a record. You may not like it, but you can still get information from it. Or you may find that Aunt Agatha was suspected of being a witch during the witch trials in Salem—and maybe she was cleared of the charges or left town.

Norwegians after landing in Quebec await their transfer to trains to the Northwest of Canada, ca. 1900.

There are several sources which may be able to help you such as the Daughters of the American Revolution, The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints (Mormons), and The National Genealogical Society in Washington, D.C.

There are some basic things you should always watch for while doing your searching that may lead you astray. The family Bible is an excellent source, but watch it—is the handwriting the same? When was this Bible published? Before or after the date of the entries? Did someone copy all the information at one time or fill in from memory or was the record completed as the events took place (reflected in variations in ink color and handwriting styles). Are you aware that the calendar was changed in 1752? Are you aware that several countries varied in their calendars and that religious calendars are vastly different from secular calendar systems? Watch yourself with dates when you start going back in time. Check out what calendar was in use at that time in that country.

Are you aware of the styles of handwriting that were popular a hundred years ago? In many cases an "s" looked like an "f". Did you stop to consider that many records have been lost due to fires or floods? Some have been recreated, but not all.

Do not overlook the tax records, voter registration lists, and for later day research, automobile licenses and mortgage records. There are some banks that have decided to make available old records for family researchers.

Naturalization Day: New citizens take the oath of allegiance. Court of the Eastern District of New York, 1924.

This brings up another point in regard to the availability of information. Much of the recent records regarding immigration and naturalization are not open to the public from the early 1900's.

So good hunting. It can be a lot of work that will take years to complete and you may have to hire a specialist to help you out on different problems, but you will find it a very rewarding and amusing pastime.

History of Ethnic Origins and Activities

America—The New World!

Through the ages man has moved—he has always been a restless animal seeking new territories and new opportunities. His reasons and needs are endless. Nature can force people to move with droughts, floods, ice ages, insect invasions (locusts), earthquakes, and volcanic eruptions. Man's own habits can force such movements, with overpopulation, land abuse, greed, oppression, and hate.

A person on the move can be known as either an emigrant or an immigrant. Both words describe a person who is leaving his native country or region to settle in another. The basic difference is that an immigrant is one who is moving to another region for PERMANENT residence.

When this person leaves his native region for a new one, he is often found to have settled into an area where others of his region have also relocated, or what is commonly called today, an ethnic neighborhood. The term ethnic pertains to characteristics common to a group. This can cover a pattern or accent of speech, a religion, a part of the country, cultural patterns, or racial characteristics.

The belief in the inherent superiority of one's own group is called ethnocentrism, and is usually accompanied by a feeling of contempt for the "ethnic" group. Every "ethnic" group in history has been both superior and inferior at one time or another.

The Trail Makers ?
Glacier National Park, Montana

The general pattern of immigration has always been from north to the south and from the east to the west. The notable exception was the movement of peoples from Mongolia and China to the new world across the Bering Strait in prehistoric times. But from there, they conformed in their movement southward, with the Eskimos remaining in the north, the American Indians settling our own country, and further movement into the central and southernmost parts of the South American Continent. Even the Aztecs were late-comers in this, moving originally from our southwest into the Valley of Mexico to eventually take over the rule of most of Mexico. Another group who migrated to the east were the islanders of the Pacific Ocean. Although it is still being debated which area they came from, it is generally believed that they came from Southeast Asia and slowly spread over the Philippines, Malaysia, New Guinea, Australia, the Fiji Islands, Easter Island and Hawaii.

On the other side of the world, the same movement was taking place. As early as 3000-2000 B.C. the Hellenes, who spoke an indo-european language, migrated from the north into what is now known as Greece. They followed this up with an invasion of Italy around 2000 B.C. from the north. During approximately the same era, the Aryans entered India through northwestern passages. Further south around 1680-1580 B.C., the Hyksos invaded and ruled Egypt. These people were a nomadic population originally believed to have come from Asia. They also introduced the horse to Egypt.

Moving forward to 1225B.C., during the 19th Dynasty in Egypt, Moses led the Israelites "into the desert". This was followed with the Israelites and Philistines invading Canaan (Palestine).

A thousand years later, Dorians invaded Greece from the north and west. In another thousand years, Egypt is again overrun by foreign peoples.

Europe, Asia, and Africa (Egypt) are constantly shifting and changing; being invaded by new people, new blood lines, languages, and customs. Some of the motives were religion, empire building, new land, or the ever-present pressure of other peoples coming in and forcing the old out. Trying to trace your ancestors back to this time period is almost impossible due to the massive upheavals and lack of census material. Unless you descend from a pharaoh of Egypt, a Greek or Roman senator or general, or possibly Alexander the Great, you won't find records for individuals.

How did Europeans come to the new world? By accident! Although it is still being hotly debated between Italians and Nordic people, it is proven that the Vikings were the first European people to land in the Americas. Not only did they land, but they established colonies in New England, Nova Scotia, and as far west as Minnesota. At approximately 1000 A.D. Leif Ericsson, the Norse, landed and named his first settlement Vinland. Coming from Greenland, the new world was a wealth of timber, furs, and farm lands.

Many years later, Europeans were looking for new trade route to China by sea. In pursuit of this, Columbus landed in the Bahamas on October 12, 1492. He went on to also land at Cuba, and Santo Domingo. On his fourth voyage, he landed on the mainland of South America at Hondorus. Since he was in the service of Queen Isabella and King Ferdinand of Spain, this was all claimed by the Spanish crown and the first colonies were Spanish. Following hopes for a trade route by sea to China and India, they continued to explore and systematically conquered and converted the native Americans under the leadership of Cortez and numerous other conquistadors and priests. Although they never discovered their trade route, they did destroy many cultures and found great wealth—and tobacco and chocolate. The conquest of the new world is a prime example of ethnocentrism in action.

Back in Europe at this time, the "Spanish Inquisition" was in full power. The Moors were driven from Granada, and the Jews of Spain were evicted from the country. Keep in mind that the inquisition was in action over the entire continent and all people lived in fear of it, not only the Jewish people. In England, the country was turmoil and the War of the Roses and Brittany is joining with the French crown; Venice, Milan, Ferdinand of Aragon, Pope Alexander VI, and Emperor Maximilian have formed a coalition in protection against French invasion. Maximilian, Emperor of Germany, also expands into the Netherlands with his marriage, and the marriage of his son into Spanish royalty, brings a major portion of Europe under his rule.

Alaskan, Mr. Ethlota, and his family, ca. 1904.

Of major importance at this time is the Treaty of Tordesillas (1494) between Spain and Portugal which gave to Portugal all lands east of a line of demarcation 370 leagues west of the Azores while Spain retained all lands west of this line. The result of this was the possession of Brazil by Portugal.

During this same time that the Spanish and Portuguese were exploring in the southern areas, the English were looking in the northern hemisphere. John Cabot, another Italian navigator, was in the service of England and was exploring the north coast of America from Labrador to possibly as far south as Delaware (1497-1498).

Two young Polish peasant women ready to leave Ellis Island, ca. 1910.

Moving ahead, we find that in 1501 and 1502, Amerigo Vespucci, an Italian in the service of Portugal, is exploring the eastern coast of South America. Eleven years later, Vasco Nunez de Balboa discovers the Pacific Ocean and Juan Ponce de Leon discovers Florida. All during this time Europe is in a state of constant warfare, alliance, and reorganization. England is also involved with the European wars as well as the English reformation, and internal strife with Scotland. Henry VIII is on the throne and forms the Royal Navy, and fathers both Mary I and Elizabeth I, and founds the Church of England, breaking with the Catholic Pope.

During the following years, we see the rise of Martin Luther (1520) and the Lutheran branch of religion, the rise of the Ottoman Empire (Turkish) and their conquest of Belgrade and Rhodes with continued campaigns against Hungry and Gustavus I, of Sweden, breaks with the pope and secularizes church estates, discontinues payments to the pope, makes bishops dependent on the king, and has the New Testament translated into Swedish. Martin Luther has been also translating the Bible into German, under the protection of Frederick of Saxony. We also find the beginning of the Protestant branch of religion in Germany with an anti-Lutheran resolution passed in 1529.

As you can see, Europe is in a time of great turmoil with divisions in religion, constant wars, and exploration in the new world. The need for money to finance all this was tremendous, and is reflected with the shipments of gold and trade goods from the new world home to the mother country. Francisco Pizarro extracts large amounts of gold and goods from the Incas in Peru and brings it under Spanish rule, executing the native ruler.

Ivan the Terrible is now added to the turmoil in his attempt to gain seaports for Russia. He is at war with Poland, the Tartars from the Crimea, and with Sweden. Peace is not seen until a treaty is signed in 1582 by Russia, Sweden, and Poland. And just to keep everyone on their toes, John Calvin heads a theocratic state at Geneva from 1541 through 1564. In England, "Bloody Mary" comes to the throne and restores Catholicism, and the persecution of the Protestants. However, with the reign of Elizabeth I Catholicism is revoked and the Anglican Church is restored. Sir Francis Drake is searching for new territory in the West Indies. The Thirty Years War is under way in Europe and is basically a war between Catholics and Protestants. Peace is not restored until 1629. In France, the Wars of Religion are in progress involving the persecution of the Huguenots and Catholics. This is finally settled in 1589 with the granting to the Protestants the same civil and political rights as the Catholics exercise. Tracing your ancestors through Europe at this time means knowing their religion and watching your boundaries, depending on which country or alliance was currently in power.

Who came to the new country to settle? Why did they come? They came to make their fortune, serve their ruler, escape persecution because of their religion.

The estimated population in the colonies in 1630 is 4,646 including 60 negro, from Virginia and New York. The population was located in Maine, New Hampshire, Plymouth, Massachusetts, New York and Virginia.

By 1680 the population had increased to 151,507 including 6,971 negroes. Keep in mind that Maine was included as part of Massachusetts from 1660 through 1760. There are no figures included for Vermont until 1770, so the population figures are included elsewhere. Pennsylvania is first included in the estimated population at 680 residents in 1680 and South Carolina in 1670 with a count of 200.

Georgia does not show up in the estimates until 1740 with an estimated population of

The remainder of the colonies show a few hundred to a few thousand.

With the population close to three million and the colonies now the United States of America, where had all these people come from? The distribution by nationality in 1790 is as follows: English-60.9%, Scotch-8.3%, Irish-Ulster-6.0%, Irish-Free State-3.7%, German-8.7%, Dutch-3.4%, French-1.7%, Swedish-0.7% and miscellaneous 6.6%.

Jumping forward to 1820, statistics show a total of 8,385 immigrants to the United States with approximately 2,410 from Great Britain, 3,614 from Ireland, 23 from Scandinavia (Norway, Sweden, Denmark, and Ireland), 452 from Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg, Switzerland and France, and 968 from Germany-Austria. In addition, there were 5 from Poland, 14 from U.S.S.R. and Baltic States, 30 from Italy, 1 from the countries of Bulgaria, Rumania and Turkey, and 174 from Southern Europe-Spain, Portugal, and Greece.

Italian immigration first peaked in 1882 with 32,159 persons coming to the U.S. The records show that immigration picked up in 1900 with 100,135 to 222,260 in 1921. Other years show a steady but less numerous flow of arrival.

Polish immigrants arrived in greatest numbers from 1921 (95,089) through 1924 (28,806). The U.S.S.R. and Baltic populations showed steady movement from 1884 through 1924 to the U.S., with the greatest numbers arriving from 1902 (107,347) to 1914 (255,660).

The German people show a steady high rate of immigration from 1846 (57,561) through 1914 (35,734). However, the greatest numbers came in 1852–1854 (150,000–200,000), 1866 to 1873 (115,000–149,000), 1881–1892 (210,485–119,168). There are only 32 years, between 1820 and 1957, in which German immigration fell below a five digit figure.

The Scandinavian populations—Norway,

Busy days on the Mississippi Landing at Nashville, Tennessee. Large stores of wire, wood, and other products laid for shipment, late 1870's.

Sweden, Denmark, and Ireland—did their greatest movement between the years of 1880 and 1914 with another rise in 1921 through 1924. During the first immigration, the count did not fall below 19,000 and reached a height of 105,326 in 1882.

The great day of the Irish immigrant was 1847 through 1854 averaging 150,000 per year. Up until 1930 the Irish have moved to the U.S. in steady numbers, not falling below five digits.

Of course, the English (Great Britain) have always regarded the U.S. as part of their country, and the immigration records indicate a constant flow of citizens to the new country. The only three years that the numbers dropped sharply were 1933 (979) and 1942 (907), and 1943(974)—the war years when all immigration dropped off from all countries.

But what of the rest of the world? We all know that the Irish built the railroad going west and the Japanese and Chinese built it going east from the Pacific. When did they arrive? And what about people from Turkey, Africa, Australia, and Mexico? Everyone knows of the European movement, but the rush to the "New World" came from all over the world. Did you realize that in the year of 1881 there were approximately 127,577 Asians and Turks admitted to this country? Thirty-three Africans? 1,802 from Canada and Mexico? 1,188 from Australia and New Zealand?

In 1882 there were 39,579 Chinese admitted while only 5 Japanese came? The records show that Chinese immigration was fairly steady at two to six thousand arrivals per year with a drastic drop in the 1930's and early fourties and again in the early 1950's.

The only period that the Japanese really came in numbers were the years from 1899 through 1924, with another rise in the 1950's.

The Turkish immigration records were not kept until 1869, but do not reflect any massive movements. The greatest numbers—and these are low compared to other nationalities —were between 1910 (15,212) and 1914 (21,716). The years between 1895 and 1924 show four to six thousand averages each year with the peak of 1910–1914, while other years show only a few hundred, if that. In 1950 only 13 immigrated.

With so much focus on the African heritage of our country today, what do the figures show? Basically only a few hundred a year have come to this country. In 1900 approximately 30 Africans were admitted while 1907 (1,486) through 1914 (1,539) there was a larger movement. Again in 1921, 1,301 came and then very low numbers until 1946 it has risen back into the four figure counts again. But keep in mind that an approximate total of 575,420 African people had been resident in the U.S. by 1780, with the first 60 arriving in 1630. Although they were slaves until the civil war, they can be proud of the role they played in developing a new world.

And what of our southern neighbors—Mexico? They settled much of the southwest and California. Mexicans have always come across the border in high numbers to find work and land of their own. Although records are not consistantly available, they show that from 1909 onward, Mexicans have been immigrating at the rate of 16 to 60 thousand per year. There was a drop 1931–1952 but it has risen again to the 30 and 40 thousand per year figure in 1953–1957.

Everyone of these people can be considered a member of an ethnic group and each had to gain acceptance in a new country. Each has undergone the changes and adjustments to their new culture. And each has made its' contribution to the building of a great country. America was built by people who had the courage to leave their familiar surroundings and start over in a new world where they often could not even speak the language. When you trace your great-grandfather down to find he was an immigrant who started in this country by working in the mines or lumber camps while he saved his money and learned the language, be proud of his courage. Or if he worked on the Union-Pacific railroad, remember the Indians he fought and the bitter-harsh weather he endured to cross our continent with rails.

The Meaning and Origin of Heraldry

Medieval Crusader

Throughout history, man has adopted symbols and objects of luck to represent him. This has changed and adapted with the specific times and necessities. It is believed that the Achievement of Arms came as a result of necessity created by man's nature to conquer.

As civilization developed better weapons with which to do battle, he also had to develop better protection for himself. This resulted in wearing padded suits, chain mail, and finally solid armour and helmets. It finally ended up with the fighters body and face being completely covered, so that by the 13th century, with the development of armour, men had to have a means of identification on the battlefield.

The Crusades of the 12th and 13th centuries made this imperative with the soldiers of the entire "civilized" world at war and mingling on the same battlefield.

Although symbols and devices were used commonly at this time, organization was not begun until around 1417 when Henvy V sent a writ to the sheriffs of several counties of England stating penalties were to be imposed on any persons coming on the expedition to France that year who wore arms to which they were not entitled, except those who had worn them at the Battle of Agincourt.

At this time, many assumed the Achievement of Arms without the right to them and there was no organization or system. So in 1483-4, Richard the III granted a Charter of Incorporation to the Officers of Arms —better known as the College of Arms. The Heralds have jurisdiction over any disputes and rights in the Achievement of Arms. The Heralds determined what arms were being borne and who was entitled to them. Their records contain thousands of "pedigrees" and are a good source for genealogists, as well as a record of Arms. Since that time, Arms are granted by the Crown on the authority of the College of Heralds. Today it is considered unethical and in some countries illegal to appropriate an existing Achievement of Arms. To use an existing "Coat of Arms" you must be able to prove descent from the family by the laws of inheritance, generally through the male line of descent.

Shakespeare

However, in Ireland, all people with the same last name are entitled to use the same "Coat of Arms".

Before going any further into this; let's clarify our terms. A "Coat of Arms" is actually only a surcoat worn over the armour with the Arms embroidered on it.

The "Achievement of Arms" includes the shield of arms and all of the accessories that go with it. Hereafter, let's refer to the "Arms" for brevity and clarification. This is a very complicated and detailed system—especially when it began as identification on the field of battle! I will review each part:

The coat of arms of the Trevelyan family. Shield, Helmet Crest

An Achievement of Arms consists of the following:

Crest
Wreath
Mantle
Helmet
Shield

Blazon — this is a verbal description of Arms. The terms are basically old Norman and French but pronounced in English. Of course, you will recognize your high school latin coming through.

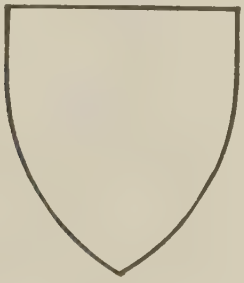
Shield — this is the most important component—without it there is nothing else. It is also known as the escutcheon. The shield consists of two basic parts, the field—the surface or background, and the charges—patterns and/or symbols drawn on the field. There is much more detail on this to come.



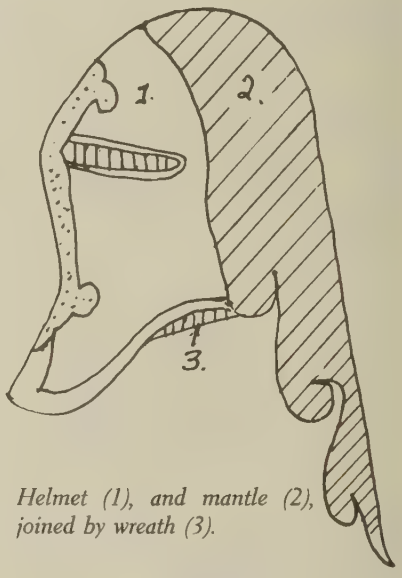
Basic Shield

Helmet — or helm, was the portion of armour which protected the head and eventually covered the face. The depiction of the helmet on the shield indicated the rank of the bearer of Arms: sovereign, peer, knight, or gentleman.

Mantle — also called lambrequin, was a piece of fabric attached to the helmet to protect the wearer from the heat of the sun. There are basically two styles, a whole mantle or a "much divided" or seaweed mantle which supposedly indicated struggle and hand-to-hand combat. This covers the essentials of the normal achievement.

Crest — this is the figure of symbol attached to the top of the helmet to aid in identification. It is generally taken from the shield and was made of light-weight wood or leather. It always accompanies Arms—never is a crest used by itself.

Wreath — or torse, was a twisted cloth or silk placed at the base of the crest to conceal the joint of the crest to the helmet. It came to be a standard of six twists alternating the color and metal of the shield.



Helmet (1), and mantle (2), joined by wreath (3).

Motto — this is a saying, war cry, hope, etc. shown on a "ribbon" below the shield or, as is usual in Scottish heraldry, shown above the shield. It is not an essential part of the Achievement.

Insignia of Office — such as a baton or wand which denotes a high office is displayed from behind the shield, coming to view outside of the actual shield boundary.

Insignia of an Order of Knighthood — any grade of an order of knighthood was entitled to display an insignia with his amoral achievement. It could take the form of a circlet of some description around the outer edge of the shield or could merely be a badge suspended below it.

Coronet — this denotes a peer of the realm. The coronet rests above the shield and supports the helmet.

Robe of Estate — this also denotes a peer and was used as a background to the Arms. It is scarlet with taffeta lining. The degree of rank is shown by "guards" or bands of fur.

Pavilion — not to be confused with the above, this is a tent-like background peculiar to continental heraldry.

Shield, Helmet Crest

Supporters — these are exactly what they sound like—usually in the form of people or beasts at the base of the shield supporting it. These are shown by peers, government units, and corporate bodies. They were originally called bearers in Scotland.

Compartment — this is the base for the supporters, usually in the form of ground or possibly the "ribbon" motto. It is believed to have originated in Scotland and possibly represented the territories or lands held by the owner of Arms.

Marshalling — the combining of two shields of Arms inherited by one man. The modern usage can denote sovereignty and dominion, alliance, descent, or mere pretension.

The Royal Arms

Note the use of motto, supporters, compartment and crest.

Now that you understand the basic components of the Achievement of Arms to their fullest, let's return to the shield. This is the most important item and contains a great deal of detail and information. As you may know, the shapes of shields has varied through the years, much as fashion varies today, and this is not important in reading the meaning of the shield although it may assist in dating it.

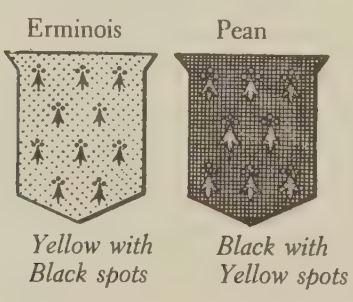
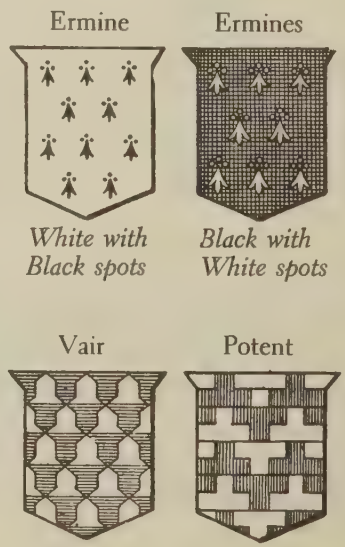
The field or actual shield surface is divided into four basic sections. For this pretend you are holding the shield up in front of yourself as if for protection—dexter or right side, sinister or left, chief or top, and base or bottom. There is also the fess point or center. These are known as the points of the shield.

The tinctures are the "metals", "colors", and "furs" used on the field. These are used to create the design or insignia on the shield. There are two metals: gold (or) depicted in yellow, and silver (argent) which is shown as white. There are five colors: red (gules), blue (azure), green (vert), purple (purpure), and black (sable). And finally there are two furs: an ermine pattern in black and white (and occasional gold and black) and a vair pattern which is an alternate blue and white (or occasional silver and blue). The vair was a kind of squirrel that was a blue/gray color on top with a white underside. This fur was very popular as a lining of cloaks.





FUR

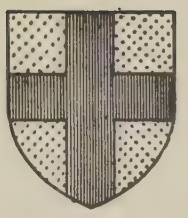
Chief



Cross

Pale

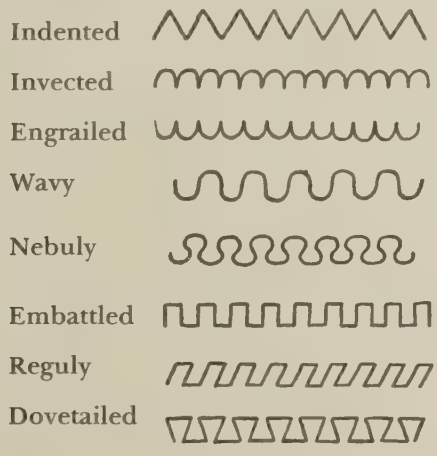
Saltire

There are two additional colors rarely used and said to be marks of disgrace due to "abatement of honor": reddish purple (murray or sanguine) and orange-tawny (tenne).

As contrast and definition of design was important on the field of battle, a standing rule is that metal is always displayed on color and color always on metal. For example, blue on gold, not blue on green, as it would lose the sharpness of the design. There are, of course, exceptions to this rule, but very few.

Now, there are also charges on the field. These are the designs such as animals, flowers, crosses, anything animate or inanimate, the most popular being the lion, the rose, and the lilly.

Then there are the ordinaries: the honorable ordinaries and the sub-ordinaries. These are geometrical figures used as charges on the field. There are seven honorable ordinaries: the bend, the chevron, the chief, the cross, the fess, the pale, and the saltire. There are fourteen sub-ordinaries: the annulet, the billet, the bordure, the canton, the flaunch, the fret, the gyron, the inescutcheon, the label, the lozenge, the orle, the pile, the roundel, and the tressure.



Partition Lines

The partition lines are used to partition the field and to border the honorable ordinaries and sub-ordinaries. There are eight basic styles: Indented, Invected, Engrailed, Wavy, Nebuly, Embattled, Reguly, Dovetailed.

The ordinaries and partitions were originally additional pieces that were added onto the shield to strengthen it. These would be painted to enhance the decoration on the field and eventually became a traditional component of the shield and of charges.

As you can realize, heraldry is a complicated and detailed system. Should you decide to create your own shield review the information I've provided and go slowly. However, if you have an Achievement of Arms in your family, the best advice I can give you is to send a good copy of it to The College of Arms, Queen Victoria Street, London, E.C.4, England. What I have described to you is the English system with some Scottish and Irish variations. The French were as detailed and systematic as the English. Germany also has its heraldry, and most European countries have their heraldic organizations to lesser or greater degrees.

If you've always wondered about a "Coat of Arms", now you have the information to track yours down or to create your own.

Origin of Names

The record of humankind indicates a desire to make order from chaos. The desire to arrange things into a meaningful order was, is, and will be. It is now known that infants are constantly filtering and ordering stimuli from the home. Shapes, odors, touches all bring to the child a sense of place and meaning, comfort or discomfort, happiness or unhappiness. Soon sounds and combinations of sounds permit the babe to identify, that is, to name persons, places, and things. This common, wonderous phenomenon of speech so deeply imbedded in our genetic being may be the origin of what we call genealogy. There are only three ways to arrange knowledge, things, people-anything. The arrangement can be by category-a taxonomy of things. The science of biology uses this arrangement and it is known to all who suffered through the subject in the tenth grade.

The second arrangement is by place. This method is most commonly found in geography, another subject that gave many indigestion of mind. The third and final configuration available to us is to arrange people, places, things and events by time. Those who died by inches in Miss Jones' American History class will remember this-fondly one would hope.

In a way genealogy is a combination of all of the foregoing, but with one crucial difference. Genealogy is about you. It is about what you are called now, what you were called then, where you acquired your name, to where you and yours will carry it.

To pursue knowledge of our past is a wholly human and noble gesture. Homo Sapien—know man is what we all are. To aid in this quest you will need a map, a guidebook to direct your efforts. The journey to a knowledge of ourselves can have convenient roadsigns to aid, but to the unwary a misread roadsign will lead to the wrong destination. So, let us chart our course and take the first tentative steps to realize the splendid sentiments of Alexander Pope when he reminded us:

> Know then thyself,
> Presume not God to scan;
> The proper study of mankind is man.

People, places, and things were always called something. Surprising as it may be, places and things had names before people. Thus Rome was Rome and could be identified before, indeed, long before Enrique Caruso could be known as the greatest star of the operatic galaxy. For if one looked at the origin and meaning of the name Caruso one would find that it meant a person with what we call a crew cut for hair, a laborer in the sulphur pits. Certainly the stage of the Metropolitan Opera is a long way from the sulphur pits of Rome; and a glance at Caruso's coiffure would deny his affection for a close cropped head. Still the meaning and derivation of the name is unchallengable. We refer to a man as another Caruso, we mean a great or potentially great singer. When Caesar referred to Caruso, yes, he was referring to his sulphur pit workers.

The point is simply that current usages of some names can be and often are completely misleading as to original meaning or intent.

If places had names before people, so too did things. Temples, Cathedral, pyramids, chariots, clerical garments the stuff of history all had names before people.

Economic and political reasons conspired to the origin of names for common people just as they did for the nobility. If the internal revenue service knows you better by your social security number than by your surname, middle and first name, you know the reason why. They have to be able to distinguish the John Smith who makes fifty thousand dollars a year from the John Smith who makes five thousand dollars.

So too, the lords of old. They had to tell one Robert from another; one Tom from another. It became a common practice for economic reasons after the Crusades for the clerks of the lords to attach bynames for descriptive reasons to the vassals of the Lords. This was done often by simply adding a preposition to a location where the vassals lived. Thus a Robert would for reasons of tax and identification become a Robert Underwood. This would distinguish him from Robert Attehill (at the hill).

Other procedures involved ridicule on descriptive words. These were applied to nobility and commoners alike. Charles the Fat, and Louis the Bald, kings of yore, are examples of unspared nobility. Nicknames, descriptive names are the forerunners of surnames but were not surnames in the hereditary sense as we know them.

John Tallman could become John Small if for some reason the son were considerably shorter than father. Such a situation is hardly a genealogists delight. For it says that at some point all of us regardless of the quality of the search will reach a point where we can go no father back to our origins. But our search can take us to a place and time in our origin.

The first group of Europeans to adopt hereditary surnames were the Venetions. This happened during the eleventh century; in France surnames were taken in the thirteenth century; England the fourteenth; Germany the fifteenth, and in recent times the practice found expression in the Scandinavian countries and in the more remote regions of countries already cited.

Again, a principal reason for taking a name was economic. Landed gentry wished to insure the continuity of the estate, the inheritance. The name of the land went to son; the son acquired not only the land but also a last name.

Moving to the lower classes, the guild system, a forerunner of the trade union system led to the gradual development and acceptance of last names by occupation. The guilds were tightly controlled and sons often, indeed usually followed the father's craft. The acquisition of the craft as well as the indentity gave pride, control and a form of economic insurance to the bearer. However, if a family had many sons, it was possible that not all sons could follow in the father's craft.

When a son left the home, pursued another occupation but retained the last name of the father, that is the inheritance of a name. The boy may be a butcher, a baker or a candlestick maker, but if he kept the name,

Smith, that is where genealogy begins. Probably all Smiths' of the world are descendants of the mighty village Smith at some time in antiquity. But in reality most are descendants of one son or another who took the father's occupation name, never practiced Smithing, and passed the name on to heirs regardless of occupation.

This phenonenon is not restricted to the Angle Saxons alone. Helmut Schmidt is the Chancellor of West Germany. His heirs will be known as Schmidts, while his forebearers were the moulders of iron.

Gabriel Faur was one of France's greatest composers of symphonic music; Jacques Lefebure, one of her greatest historians. Alas, they are Smith's, too.

The same is true for Slavic: Kovac; The Danish Smed; the Italian Ferraro; the Russian Kuznetzov, the Polish Kowal. Smith's all.

If your last name begins with an occupation of some sort, you know that some where at some time some one did that. But in all liklihood your search will find grandfathers and great and great great grandfathers who engaged in a range of pursuits to boggle the imagination.

Many common names were derived from the variety of animals in the world and characteristics human's attributed to them. Thus, "cunning as a fox;" "brave as a lion" and so forth.

"Good morning, Mr. Fox."
"Hello Mr. Lion."

One would wish to offer unequivocally to all the Lions, (Lyons), Fox's, Owls, Wolf's, Bulls of the world that, yes, your forebearers did possess these characteristics. They were brave, cunning, quick shrewd, tenacious. They may have been, but your name is no guarantee.

Names were derived from and given to people according to animal like characteristics. But the majority of names of that variety come from signs, signs that identified landmarts, inns, and ecclesiastical buildings.

Thus, Mr. Lion could have been very brave and named for the "golden warrior" of the African Plain. One would like to think so. Or he could have been a farmer who ploughed at the sign of the Lion. This sign would be placed in front of an Inn as an identifying landmark in days before the ready availability of Exxon road maps.

Mr. Cross may have been a pious Christian. Then again he may have been a mighty sinner who resided near "the sign of the cross." We do not know. Nor do you; but the chase and quest may tell.

The fame of Major Major Major in Catch 22 offers another insight into a possible origin of your name. A title, a first name, and a last name all the same. Confusing, perhaps, but a true source of the origin of a name, regardless of characteristics, place of residence, or occupation.

The fathers first name is George. The son's name is George's George. The son keeps his George and names his son Henry. Thus the common name and occurrance of two first names for a first name and last name. The Germans often followed this tradition; most people, however, merely added the suffix "son" to the first name. This explains the large numbers of names ending in "son"—Johnson, Peterson, Robertson, Jackson and so on. Our European brothers were no different. The Scandinavian—sen; the Polish—wicz, the Spanish—ez all mean son, son of.

The Irish Mac, Norman Fitz and Welsh

Ap are prefixes denoting "son of." MacMillan is the Irish for son of Millan' Fitzhugh, son of Hugh. Finally there are the pet names and the diminutives of first names as a source of subsequent surnames. The son of Richard would be called Dick. His son would be called Dickson. So it is also with Thomas and Thomson or Tomson, Clement and Clemson.

Extraction, nationality and variations all will have an effect on the spelling, meaning and origin of a name. Boundry lines of Europe changed considerably since the death of Charlemagne in 843. Wars moved armies, soldiers co-mingled with the inhabitants of the lands to which they moved. Some stayed, some moved because of social, or economic upheaval. Some were slaves carried to the United States. Others emigrated and had emmigration officials alter, barbarize or simply give a name to the emigre. Your name will give you a clue to your origins, but be wary of false clues. You may assume certain things about yourself as a result of your name, but only a thorough search will confirm or deny the accuracy of your assumptions.

Can a name be an asset or a liability? There is much discussion on the subject, but very little evidence one way or another.

Two Johnson's were Presidents of the United States. The name is common enough. Millions of other Johnsons were never considered or considered themselves as candidates for the presidency of the United States.

Perhaps a classic example of a name that by meaning is unflattering, but did not seem to affect the fortunes of some of its bearers would serve as a case in point.

Kennedy is derivative from two sources. It means one with a grotesque skull or helmut headed. There is no agreement as to whether or not helmut headed meant descendant of a warrior or was simply a way of ridicule to describe those with abnormal heads. (skulls).

Certainly if John F. Kennedy were publicized as John Misshapen Head when he was running for the presidency, his name would have been a liability. But he was known simply as John F. Kennedy. Genealogy can and will give proof to the American dream of equality of opportunity and ambition. Regardless of the positive or negative aspects of your surname, the things that matter are the things you do yourself.

You may find rouges and angels, saints and sinners during the search. The one thing you won't find is dullness. Oops, apologies to all the Dillings and Dillingers. Your name may say you are descendant from dull ones, but we all know better.

How To Use The Reference Directories:

The Reference Directories are a current listing of families with your surname and are made available to you for your personal research. The directories are to be used in conjunction with your Heritage and Lineage Charts, and Personal History Sheets. At the same time that you have received your book and are working on completing your reference sheets, other people with your name across the country are working on theirs. These people may be parents, grandparents, aunts, uncles, nieces, nephews or cousins.

The Forward Lineage Chart:

The Lineage Chart records the parents, children and grandchildren of an ancestor plus their births, deaths, and spouses. It is designed to provide a means for more distant relatives to determine a common ancestor and then to work forward in time. In this way, you may establish a particular relative as first cousin, second cousin or third, and then determine if you are of the same generation, or REMOVED.

The Individual Heritage Chart:

The Heritage Chart represents your actual direct line forebearers. Each generation back represents the addition of one, then two, then four, etc. new family names into your heritage. Along with the names, each generation can represent the addition of a meaningful history of rich or poor, royal or slave, adventurer, farmer, tradesman, hunter or soldier.

The Personal History Sheet:

The personal History is what we would like to know about every one of our relatives. It is also what we currently know about ourselves, our parents, and most likely our grandparents. It is information, which unless recorded today, can be lost as a generation passes on. This is the information that other members of your family will want to know about the people and places which make up their heritage.

Family Signature Sheet:

A signature is a close and personal representation of the personality, psychological attitude and physical aptitude of an individual. It is more representative of a person than any other single item. It is an item that should be collected on every member of your family NOW. Generations from now, this book, this signature sheet, and these signatures will still represent these people.

THE REFERENCE DIRECTORIES

Following is a directory of all of the families in the United States with this surname, which we have been able to locate through the computer scanning of government, utility and other reputable records. It is provided for your personal use in the search for your family ancestors. Since these surnames are unique, they quite often represent a common heritage or place of origin. For instance, the name "Deal" represents families who were original inhabitants of the Deal (Valley) in Kent, England. If you can trace your family name back to a particular foreign country, then you can refer to the reference books and begin your foreign search.

The last page of this directory provides a state count of the families with this last name. Even though people in the United States are mobile, the state count gives you an excellent beginning for determining where heavy concentrations of the family surname exists. These are the areas where you should start looking for early census information.

The first names of the families in this directory are most interesting because we have a very nice habit of naming our children after relatives. If you spot an uncommon first name which also runs in your family, you may have come upon a lost relative.

THE FAMILY HERITAGE BOOK CERTIFICATE

On the next page you will find a Certificate of Authenticity showing the original owner of this book. When turning to the reverse side you will find that space has been provided to transfer this book from the original owner to future generations. It is our intention that the proper use of this certificate will provide your family with a permanent record of ownership which will be of historical interest for years to come.
